Bradley Bird

Principal, St Joseph's Institution International (Singapore)

Bradley Bird is an experienced international school Principal with over 30 years in secondary education across Australia and abroad. He is currently the Principal of St Joseph's Institution International in Singapore, a world-class IB school consistently ranked among the top 20 globally for academic performance.

Previously, Bradley was Head of Secondary at the Australian International School, Singapore, where he led the implementation of high-impact teaching and learning practices across the IB and HSC curricula.

Originally from Melbourne, he spent two decades in the VCE system, holding a range of senior leadership roles. His passion lies in fostering holistic student learning and empowering young people with the voice, confidence and skills to thrive in a diverse, ever-changing world.

Bradley holds a Master's degree from the University of Melbourne, with undergraduate qualifications in Commerce and Education. He is deeply committed to the power of relationships in education and is guided by the mission and values of his Lasallian school community.

Alongside his leadership role, Bradley collaborates with the University of Queensland and the University of Warwick to support postgraduate teaching programs. He also works with the Council of International Schools, the Western Association of Schools and Colleges, and advises two education companies in Canada and Australia.
